Chief Mechanical Engineer of
Omsknefteorgsintez (1996)

In 1991 our plant management decided to develop and implement a new system on machinery control and reliable operation. There were lots of those who were pretty skeptical about the system, did not believe in it, but the COMPACS quickly proved itself worthy by showing an excellent performance in machinery health monitoring. Currently, this system operates at plenty of process units. Not a single engineer or technician can picture themselves without this system, let alone the machine operators.
